

At the Intersection of Privacy and Security -- Eugene H. Spafford

Abstract: Privacy and security are often viewed as tradeoffs, and advocates often argue for one extreme or the other. However, there are different dimensions to privacy, and not all of them are binary with respect to security.

In this talk I will discuss some of the issues that lead to conflict between better security and better privacy, and outline some approaches to take a "middle road."