

🎤 Can Research Be Revolution? Series

THE RESEARCH UNDERCOMMONS: CRAFTING TOOLS TO ANSWER COMMUNITY PROBLEMS

Join us Tuesday, May 17th at 10 AM for Dr. Blu Buchanan's talk as a part of the "Can Research Be Revolution? Speaker and Workshop Series on Engaged Research" hosted by the School of Communication and Information's Power and Inequality Working Group.

📄 Zoom Registration Links

Presentation (10 AM): <https://bit.ly/Buchanan-Presentation>

Lunch Workshop (12 PM): <https://bit.ly/Buchanan-Lunch-Workshop>

About Dr. Buchanan

Blu Buchanan is a University Fellow in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at UNC Asheville. They have written for academic publications such as GLQ: The Journal of Gay and Lesbian Studies and PUBLIC: A Journal of Imagining America, as well as edited volume chapters in Black Feminist Sociology: Perspectives and Praxis and Unsafe Words: Queer Perspectives on Consent in the #MeToo Era. Their public-facing writing focuses on movements to disarm campus police and confronting trans antagonism in the university.